Welcome to Graduation 1987. Seniors, it won't be long now.

WELCOME BACK! Changes Throughout The Campus

The reflections of the first year. Carson hall was newly renovated. Gordis and Smith halls were old. There was no pedestrian mall and Stetson hall was falling down. Elizabeth hall had no carpet. Wesley house was in good shape. That was then.

We moved into the dorms. We didn't know anyone. A new surrounding. A new way of life. We had our first focus meeting. We found out what Greenfeather meant. We saw our first Stover production. We found out what a real test was. Studying took on a new meaning. The library was one of our best friends. That was then.

The reflections of the senior year. Three classes of seniors have graduated. Gordis and Smith halls are renovated. There is a pedestrian mall. Stetson hall is rebuilt. Eilzabeth hall has carpet, and Wesley House burned. This is now. We know the campus well now. We have seen several Stover productions. We know how to take tests. Stetson is now home with many Passing Sensations.

Dr. Colwell, Dr. Brackman, and Dr. Lee sing during convocation.

STUDENTS Show Their Pride!

Throughout Stetson's history there are always students that are Stetson proud. This year was no exception. Students here have a chance to show this pride in various forms. Whether they are enjoying sitting in the pedestrian mall or sitting in the student lounge, they are Stetson proud. Whether they are walking through the campus, or attending a fraternity party, they are Stetson proud. Whether they are playing a game or studying in the library, they are Stetson proud. The size of Stetson, along with the variety of activities, as well as the solid, rigid curriculum makes our school respected and recognized throughout the southeast. This is what makes our students here at Stetson, Stetson proud!

LOOKING BACK A Year to Remember

What is it that sets a school year apart from any other? This past year witnessed many events and special occasions. It welcomed a new President. It also welcomed 600 new students, marking the beginning of a new adventure in their lives. It celebrated with Greenfeather's hilarity, competition, talent, and giving. It saw the frustration and dedication of Rush, and the smiles of Bid Day. It brought Hatters together at Homecoming to boast of past and present victories.

Yearly events do not make school years unique but instead tie them together with tradition. People, on the other hand, bring traditions to life with the flavors of the times. One-of-a-kind personalities, opinions, and insights made this year at Stetson one to remember. It is the FOCUS advisor who went the extra mile, the R.A. who took the time to listen, the actor or musician who gave his/her best performance ever . . . these are the people who give us our fondest memories of Stetson.

CALENDAR

RISE AND RAZE

Has there been a more obvious expression of change and progressiveness at Stetson in recent years than the Panhellenic Complex of seven new sorority houses? Initial construction work began early in 1987, but students left school after Spring semester wondering if the houses would be livable by late August. Although the houses were a little rough around the edges, six of the seven were, in fact, ready for the returning residents. The seventh house, Kappa Alpha Theta's, was completed a week later. Finishing touches

Although special Physical Plant projects such as these continue to enhance Stetson's campus, attentions return to the Panhellenic Complex. These buildings are the beginning of a new Panhellenic orientation: increased pride, a sense of "home", healthy competition mixed with bonding similarities. They are the end of sorority "apartments" and Rush on fraternity row. Senior sorority members this year will be the last to vividly recall these Passing Sensations.

Kim Dupree, Director of Student Life Jayne Marlowe, and Lucille Russo admire the new sorority houses.

DOWNS & UPS of a Stetson summer!

and landscaping efforts continued into November.

Other major and minor changes also occurred at Stetson during Summer, 1987. Fire engulfed the main building of Wesley House; none were injured, but reconstruction work lasted several months. Elizabeth Hall got a new look on the main and two upper floors. The President's home received special decorating and repair attention to prepare for Stetson's new President, Dr. Douglas Lee, and his family.

The evolution: boards are set into place; beams are positioned to prepare for the roof; bricks are laid; seven new houses take shape. Each house is structurally identical to the other six, although each chapter room was decorated by the individual sorority.

A bright balloon rainbow, Catherine Diethorn, and Amy Granholm welcome visitors to the ZTA house.

INTO FOCUS '87

A new person (or two!) to live with . . . food from the Commons . . . feeling lost . . . feeling lonely . . . What's a new student to do to keep up with all of these changes in his/her life? FOCUS helps provide the answer, through contact with the FOCUS advisor and week-long programs.

While new students are adjusting to life at Stetson, their FOCUS advisor becomes an anchor in their lives, someone who can answer questions, introduce them to new friends, and "show them the ropes" around Stetson and DeLand.

In keeping with tradition, the FOCUS staff hosted a week of events, including the Goombay Smash luau, the Flagler Beach party, parent and student information sessions. New Student Barbeque, and the Edmunds Center Dance. PLAYFAIR, an exciting and innovative icebreaking session, brought new students together in a special way. Additions to the FOCUS agenda included a New Student Dating Game and a rendition of "Early Afternoon with David Letterman . . ."

Stetson University as a whole has undergone many changes during the past year, and adjusting to these changes is the name of the game. The FOCUS program has been addressing the topics of change and adjustment for years, helping new students become "Stetson Proud" Hatters.

FRANTIC WEEKS
lead to happy endings as the 1987 Rush boasts the biggest pledge class ever!

Over 300 shouting observers watched as fourteen Delta Sigs formed a human pyramid and as Sigma Nu pledges jumped through the air, landing safely (?) in their new brothers' arms. Songs and cheers were all a part of Fraternity Bid Pick-Up as 134 men pledged Stetson's eight fraternities.

Although approximately the same number of men rushed fraternities this year as last, a higher percentage pledged. This may be attributed to many changes, including more creative Rush parties with greater emphasis on the benefits of the overall fraternity system. Under Geoff Timm, IFC President, Stetson's fraternities enjoyed a year of high pledge retention, improved programming, and enthusiasm.

This Fall's sorority Rush also boasted a large pledge class, due in part to several changes in the Rush format. For the first time, sororities Rushed in their own houses, serving to enhance Rush parties and heighten members' excitement. Also, because of delays in construction of the houses, Rush was postponed one week. This allowed sorority members more time to prepare for their Rush parties and to meet individuals interested in rushing informally.

Whatever the reasons, sorority Rush was a definite success this year. Although about the same number of women participated in Rush this year as last, 27% more pledged a sorority. This translated into 169 new pledges, the largest Panhellenic pledge class ever.

GREENFEATHER

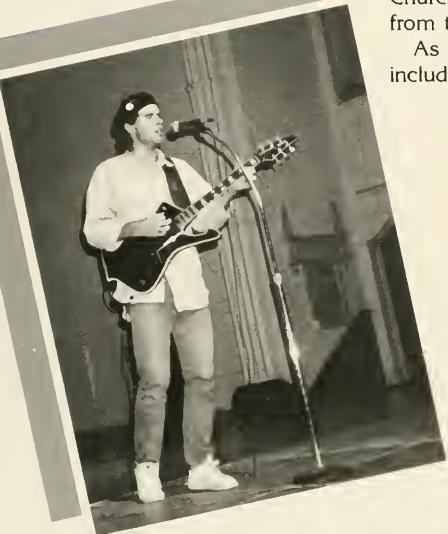

Giving is a Greenfeather tradition, but this year's Greenfeather, held in late October, brought the spirit of giving to the forefront more than ever. Eleven charities including the Duval Home, the United Methodist Church, and the United Way, benefitted from the special week-long activities.

As in the past, Greenfeather events included the Fund Run, the Rock-a-thon, creative Chalk Art on the sidewalks in front of the Union, the Talent Show, the outrageous Mr. Beauty Contest, Miss Greenfeather contest, the Olympic Events, and the popular Greenfeather Carnival. Student winners included Chris Bennett, first place in the Fund Run, and Darald Stubbs, "Mr. Beauty, 1987", but the true winners were the charitable organizations who split over $17,000 in donations. Representatives from each charity spoke at each activity this year, helping students and supporters to see how their donations help those in need.

As well as increasing charity visibility, Co-Chairmen Dana Boeckh and Jim Daughton set "student understanding through involvement" as one of their goals this year. One unique way they accomplished this was through a new program called the "Readathon". Greenfeather staff members recognized that visually impaired and blind Stetson students, because Braille textbooks are unavailable, have their texts read to them. The Readathon, therefore, involved groups and individuals in reading necessary textbooks onto a tape for those in need. This year, enough texts were read for two semesters' worth of material. Hopes are high to begin a library of these materials for all interested students to use.

Sincere giving and hard work coupled with fun events and good times makes Greenfeather Week a hit every year. Special projects such as the Readathon made this year's Greenfeather unique in its generosity and scale.

SPOTLIGHT: THE ARTS

Each of us views "creativity" differently. A musician sees it in the interpretation of a song. Actors find it in the development of the characters they portray. A painter uses it to redefine reality onto an easel. True craftsmanship requires a "love-hate" relationship between artist and art. An artist must then combine his unbounded creativity with refined skills to produce well-designed, well-rehearsed, ingenious pieces of himself. Stetson University very fortunately has a large population of aspiring artists in different disciplines. Student majors vary from drama to church music, and student performances vary from quartets to exhibits to student-produced one-acts. Young talent is recognized and cultivated here, as instructors spend many extra hours working to develop individual potential.

While faculty teach, they also perform on their respective stages throughout the year. The Artists and Lecturers Committee, for example, brings to campus outstanding speakers and performers, while "Top Hat" performances and other recitals show off our own, in-house talents. Events such as these help all to benefit from Stetson's creative community.

Student artists work long hours in the studio perfecting their technique.

HOMECOMING 88

Hatter Homecoming, 1988: a time where traditions meet new ideas and bright plans for the future. A time to celebrate athletic victories and personal triumphs. A time to see old friends. A time for laughter and rededication.

This year Homecoming weekend was held on February 19 - 21. The Hatters met Georgia Southern in basketball. This was not the only athletic challenge of the weekend, however. Tennis tournament play, varsity baseball, and alumni baseball games were all held on Friday, and the Lady Hatters and alumni basketball team joined the Hatters in playing Saturday. The annual Road Race was also held on Saturday.

The weekend was also filled with special reunions, receptions, and events. Stover Theatre presented a production of "A Company of Wayward Saints" on Friday and Saturday evenings. Also on Friday evening, Stetson University welcomed famous comedian Jay Leno to the Edmund's Center stage. Leno is well-known for his appearances on The David Letterman Show and guest-hosting on The Johnny Carson Show.

Saturday morning, students, faculty, staff, and alumni enjoyed the annual Fund-Raiser Cookout held in the Forest of Arden. At 1:00 that afternoon, a large crowd assembled to commemorate the official University dedication of the Panhellenic Complex. Others enjoyed the Music Festival in Elizabeth Hall. All Hatters rallied around the Hatter basketball team as they performed strongly against Georgia Southern.

HATTER LEEDERSHIP

It seems fitting that a theme for Homecoming would involve the recognition of campus leaders, past and present. Stetson's "Lee-dership" theme highlighted the inauguration of Doug Lee as President this year, welcoming him to his new role and supporting him and changes inspired under his lead.

Many other individuals have also played special roles in the development of Stetson. Etter Turner, former Dean of Women, and Jayne Marlowe, current Director of Student Life, spoke at the Panhellenic Complex Dedication, proudly witnessing the reality of their dreams and hard work. Athletes competed in their specialties for personal and team triumphs. Gifted musicians and actors performed for audiences, entertaining all with their expertise.

This year's Homecoming Host and Hostess were Tres Mullis and Lillian Washington. These two outstanding students represented the student body during many activities. Because of the commitment and hard work of these and many other students, faculty, and staff leaders, this year's Homecoming was even more than an athletic success.

Organizations celebrate Homecoming's "Lee-dership" theme by making banners.

FORESIGHT Prepares Students for the Future

Whether fresh and new or established and proven, it is the faculty and staff that Stetson students look to for friendly advise and helpful guidance.

Stetson faculty is dynamic and ever-changing. The most obvious change this year was the gala and ceremonious installation of the new President, Douglas Lee. Of course, there remain some unchangeable symbols of knowledge, such as Dr. Colwell, an extraordinarily able professor who faithfully leads the spectacular convocation at the Forest of Arden each year.

A university is a multi-faceted institution. As well as a place of learning, it is a food service, a counseling center, a comptroller, a health service, and a safe, secure place to call home. Running a university such as Stetson is a big business, and for such an establishment to thrive, it takes a special group of people to keep it running smoothly — the Stetson staff.

And as the Stetson students of today are the leaders of tomorrow, these valuable role models generously pass on to us the leadership skills, knowledge, and important values that will be indispensable aids as we bravely face the challenges of the future.

Passing Sensations

PERSONNEL

Beginning a New Era

It has been about a year since President Doug Lee began in his new office, and it certainly has been a year of reflection and of looking ahead. Looking back means understanding Stetson's current status: entrenched in a highly competitive environment, yet providing unique opportunities for students, faculty, and staff. Looking ahead means long-range goals, considering the community's needs, encouraging faculty, staff, and student participation in planning, and positioning Stetson on the national academic map. Working to put it all together are all Stetson supporters. Working to keep it on track is Dr. Doug Lee.

Provost Louis Brakeman

Dr. Louis Brakeman joined the Stetson team as the new Provost this past year. He was formerly the director of the Study of Professional Development for the Great Lake College Association.

Dr. Brakeman believes that the faculty development and curriculum development need to be competitive. Assisting them with this is one of his major responsibilities. One of the steps he has taken was to schedule monthly faculty meetings so that the faculty can come together to appreciate the value of the whole university.

Dr. Brakeman enjoys working with the faculty, and wants to encourage them to pursue their individual and collective goals.

Chancellor Pope Duncan

The position of Chancellor was set up in the university by-laws when former president J. Ollie Edmonds retired from his office in 1977, and the second person to hold that title is former university president Dr. Pope A. Duncan.

The chancellor is an elected officer of the Board of Trustees given duties, mostly fund raising activities, as assigned by the president. For example, Dr. Duncan represented the university on behalf of the president at the 100th anniversary of Flagler College.

Chancellor Duncan no longer deals with the day-to-day operations of the university, but he will help in any way appropriate to the external constituencies.

Church Relations

John Pelham

John L. Pelham, a former Stetson student, is now the Vice President for Church Relations. He has had a wide variety of pastoral and denominational experience at the Associational, State, and Southern Baptist Convention levels.

Dr. Pelham has also been involved with preaching missions in Jamaica, Peru and Ecuador. Since 1968, he has gone on the Annual Youth Mission Trips to pioneer areas of the northeast.

In 1987, Dr. Pelham received the honor of being voted Alumnus of the Year by the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Business & Finance

H. Graves Edmondson

For the students, rising tuition rates are a major concern while maintaining costs with the changing economic conditions is a major concern for Vice President of Business and Finance, H. Graves Edmondson. He graduated and received his masters degree of business administration from Stetson. Joining the university as comptroller, he has served as the chief business officer for the past seventeen years.

His responsibilities include all matters concerning the budget, accounting, personnel and the physical plant.

INTRAMURALS: Fun and Frenzied

One of the most exciting sports programs at Stetson is that of Intramurals. Designed to provoke friendly competition between organizations, and establish pride, Intramurals include a wide range of activities, from football and volleyball, to ping pong and tennis.

Headed by Dennis Davenport, as director, and three chairmen, Terri Rosenberg, Kathy Masters, and Terri Horton, the Intramurals Staff oversees all sports, and award the coveted P-cup and All Points Trophy. Emphasizing participation as well as overall skill, the P-cup is awarded to the male organization that has amassed the most points, and the All Points Trophy goes to the female organization that meet the same criteria.

Men's football was grueling this year, with the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity taking highest honors. In women's volleyball, the team from Emily Hall placed first, with Conrad Hall close behind them. The season is completed with Tennis, Swimming, and Women's Football. Winter Term activities will include horseshoes, soccer, and ping-pong, while in Spring we will see softball, baseball, and basketball.

Challenging and enjoyable, Intramurals is an important part of student life.

Passing Sensations
SPORTS

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Last season the Lady Hats enjoyed a fantastic 21-8 record without seniors; this year's roster therefore boasts experience, enthusiasm, and positive momentum. At the beginning of the season, Head Coach Nancy Nichols stated, "I think we have a strong shot at the Conference title if we're healthy. If we're not, then we are going to struggle." Unfortunately, at the beginning of the season, four of the nine returning players were recuperating from injuries.

Besides three returning seniors and three juniors on the squad, the Lady Hats welcomed two new promising team members. With this kind of leadership and variety, the Lady Hats continued to excel on the court, and, as a result, had an exciting and rewarding season.

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

This year's Lady Hat Volleyball team faced a different schedule pitting Stetson against top competition. The team's strength's included seniors Stephanie Roszell and Katy Barbour and veterans Cristy Hoffman and Michelle McEntire, along with enthusiastic newer members and strong team spirit. Although the team's season ended with a record of 14-25, the Lady Hats continue to be a driving force within the New South.

This year also welcomed back Elizabeth Schumaker, head coach of the women's volleyball team. Schumaker was the Lady Hatter coach seven years before stepping down after the 1986 season, but after just one year, the coaching bit her again and she returned to the team. Schumaker is an associate professor of Physical Education on the Stetson faculty.

BASEBALL

Stetson's Baseball team has a long history of successes. At the beginning of the 1988 season, the Hatters boasted an impressive nineteen consecutive winning seasons. In 1969, the Hatters hierarchy committed to excellence in baseball, and Stetson has not had a losing season since.

The Hatters played a 15-game fall slate between September and November and an extremely competitive NCAA Division I 55-game schedule between February and May. The Spring schedule is traditionally one of the most demanding in the Southeast.

This year the Hatters welcomed 12 newcomers to the team and 17 returnees. One of Stetson's strongest areas was pitching; 13 team members were pitchers. Pulling together experience and "new blood" within the team gave the Hatters another winning season.

SPECIAL SPOTLIGHT

It'd be hard to find a bigger sports fan than Dick Westervelt. In 1953, he came to DeLand as a broadcaster for WJBS, now WSTN. In 1958, he left to be managing editor of the DeLand Sun News and in 1969 he became Sr. Vice President at First Federal, now Empire, until 1984 when he returned to Stetson to serve in his present capacity as Sports Info. Director. He's been involved in sports all his life and is "enjoying his career now more than ever!"

The 1987-1988 Stetson Bat Girls included: Lisa Herron, Gina Dianni, Alicia Raffa, Lisa Bales, Stacey Loston, Lydia Fiedler, Kim Barnett, Michele Pirkau, Robyn Farrar, Cindy Griffis, Laura Gareau, Beth Younggren, Krista St. John, Shelly Minotti, Heather Clarke, Tina Mumford, Sharon Jones, Mandy Raiford, Dawn Pilot, Andrea Fair, Kelly Bostdorff, Donna Christopher (Administration).

Pete Dunn has only coached the Stetson Hatter Baseball team for eight years, and yet this year he passed the 300 Wins mark with the Hatters. At the beginning of the 1988 season, Dunn had an overall record at Stetson of 298-156 or a winning percentage of .656.

Head Coach Pete Dunn has much to be proud of, not only in his team's record but in his own accomplishments. In 1987 he was ranked in the nation's Top 50 coaches in percentage of wins and among the top 125 coaches in total victories. Only two coaches among more than 250 NCAA Division I college coaches have won more games in the same career span. Hats off to Stetson graduate Pete Dunn and his outstanding record with the Hatter Baseball team!

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL

Stetson fast-pitch softball had quite an impressive history as it completed its third season. With a two-year record of 52-20 and a 1986-87 New South Championship to look back on, Stetson bypassed the building stage of its program. In 1987-88, Stetson faced new challenges as their schedule continually got upgraded.

In 1987-88, pitching and defense were the Lady Hatters' strengths. Senior Erin Owen and Sophomore Noelle Sullivan formed a solid pitching "team". At the plate, the team's excellent defensive infield looked to Co-Captains Debra Clarke and Cheryl Conklin and to Erin Owen to lead the way. Each freshman also had fast-pitch experience and provided a spark with the bat.

The 1987-88 schedule posed some hurdles for the Lady Hats but history favored them. In fact, it was often heard coming from the dugout, "In 1986-87 we were the best, now we've gone and beat the rest!"

CROSS COUNTRY

Although Stetson's Cross Country team is small and their events not well-publicized, every year the Hatter harriers run in several major races including the TAAC Championship meet and several races run locally at the DeLand airport. The women's Cross Country team also participates in a variety of events in the Florida South group.

This year's TAAC Championship was held in San Antonio, Texas in late October. The University of Texas finished in first; our own Hatters finished fifth in the team standings. Top finisher for Stetson, Frank Green, finished the 5-mile course in 28:04, good for 14th place overall.

STETSON BASKETBALL

Hatter Coach Glenn Wilkes stated at the beginning of the season that if the team could improve by just four points, he would be completely satisfied.

After playing 30 games of a schedule termed by experts as one of the strongest in the nation, Stetson fell four points short of a berth in the 1986-87 NCAA post-season tournament.

This year seven players return out of last year's roster. Randy Anderson heads the returnees. He led the Hats in both scoring and rebounding last year (his 311 rebounds in 1986 set a school Division I record). Kuhl, Johnson, Jenkins, Barnett, Woodward and Cumbie also returned in '88.

Forward Hakim Hazim goes for two.

STETSON BASKETBALL

The Ocean Center arena in Daytona Beach was the scene of this year's Trans America Athletic Conference Tournament. Last year's host, the University of Arkansas-Little Rock, also bid for the event again this year, but conference officials instead elected to try a new location. The decision was based on the fact that the arena holds up to 8,000 fans and can be considered a more "neutral" arena for basketball play than the Trojan home arena in Little Rock.

Head Coach Glen Wilkes was excited about the prospect of hosting the event. He felt that Stetson fans would be able to follow tournament action much more closely and the event itself would be beneficial for the area. "After all," he said, "Little Rock is a long way from Volusia County . . . we wanted (our fans) to attend the tourney."

MEN'S GOLF

Headed by Mark Leetzow, Team Captain, and Head Golf Coach Michael O'Sullivan, the Stetson Men's Golf Team has enjoyed a year of successes on and off the range. On the fairway, the team enjoyed victories as did individuals. Mark Leetzow, for example, boasts past victories including All Conference champ in 85-86 and 86-87 and All Tournament Champ in 86-87.

Off the fairway, the team has grown in size and in spirit. Since 1984 when O'Sullivan began coaching the team, interest in and commitment to the program has escalated so that now, in 1988, about 25 student-athletes take part in tournaments. Not only are team numbers increasing, but more and more quality players are seeking spots on the team.

WOMEN'S GOLF

The Lady Hat Golf program began just two years ago under the direction of Coach Mike O'Sullivan. At first, O'Sullivan had to search for players to meet the minimum of five players required for entering a tournament. This year, eight women, all quality players, are committed members of the team.

The commitment felt by both the Men and Women's teams was inspired by the dedication of Mike O'Sullivan, who took over Stetson's golf program in 1984.

O'Sullivan turned pro in 1961 and joined the PGA a couple of years later. He is the first full-time golf coach in Hatter history, and in his four years here, he has elevated the program to a place of prominence in Florida and in the Southeast.

SOCER

1987 was a strong recruiting year for Stetson's soccer program. The team was led by three outstanding seniors, Co-Captains Brian Candon, Chris Bennett and Chip Bauder. The defense was led by two-time TAAC All-Conference selection Ed Funcheon along with Pat Daxon at center back. The midfield was directed by TAAC All-Conference selection Brian Candon and Jason Russek.

Coach Gary McKinley continued his crusade to attract the most talented players in Florida. With the signing of Thad Bostic from DeLand High and the hiring of Bob Wilson as the new assistant Coach, local fans had one of their own to root for.

"Florida is developing some of the greatest players in the U.S. and as long as we continue to draw players from Florida and across the U.S., we will compete with anyone on the Division I level," said McKinley.

STETSON TENNIS

Nineteen eighty-eight was the first year that the Men's Tennis team competed for a conference title. Each of Stetson's men's sports, according to Stetson's Tennis Update, competes for conference championships in the Trans America Athletic Conference. The ten team league is divided into an Eastern Division, with Stetson, GA Southern, GA State, Mercer and Samford, and a Western Division, with Hardin-Simmons, Arkansas-Little Rock, Centenary, Houston Baptist, and Texas-San Antonio. Stetson competed in the Eastern Tennis Championships on April 16-18.

This year welcomed Coach Vicky Pate as head of both the Men's and Women's tennis programs. Returnees Frankie Miller, Farris Briggs and Todd Carriglio added experience to the Stetson team. It was an exciting and challenging year for Stetson's team.

The Lady Hatters are in their second year of competition in the New South Women's Athletic Conference. Stetson is a charter member of the league which began last season. The Lady Hats went on to win the first-ever New South Tennis Championship held last spring. For Stetson, joining the conference, according to Stetson's Tennis Update, put all the women's teams into NCAA Division I competition. Teams in the New South are Stetson, Central Florida, Florida A & M, Georgia Southern, Georgia State and Mercer. Last season's tennis championship helped Stetson to a first-place tie in the final all-sport trophy standings.

This year, although the team is young, they benefit from enthusiasm and talent. Two-time MVP Whitney Bales served as assistant coach this year, adding experience to the team's many other assets.

CHEERLEADING

At the sound of hearing the word Cheerleader, the first things to come to mind are basketball, energetic chants, and fundraisers. However, being a cheerleader is much more than just those things. There is a great deal of time, dedication and enthusiasm that is necessary to creating a skilled and "cheery" squad.

This year, the Stetson Cheerleaders were very busy on and off the court. Contrary to what many may think, the Cheerleaders had numerous other activities to keep their schedules full. Their year started off to a quick pace when they attended Cheerleading camp at Tenn. State University, where they earned seven superior ribbons. After this, they arrived home to Stetson and began work on the 1987-88 Cheerleading Calendar. The Cheerleaders strove to do their best—not only for our teams, but to keep the Stetson Proud spirit roaring!

The competition's got nothin' on the Hats!

Intramurals represent more than students vying for trophies. Many don't realize the long-standing Intramurals traditions. It's estimated that about 30% of the student body participates in Intramurals annually, and this year, over 800 students gave their all in Intramurals events. "People don't realize how much Intramurals are part of Stetson's spirit and tradition," said Dennis Davenport, Intramural Director. The pride of Intramurals has remained in that they're solely for students. Quoting the 1964-65 Intramural report forward: "The purpose of Intramurals is to encourage students to manage, direct and participate in physical events as part of a learning process, to promote stability, coordination, sportsmanship and a sense of leadership. The program is for you, the student." Intramurals are truly a vital tradition in Hatter life!

BEING GREEK

Knowing the Alpha, Beta, Gammas

What does it mean to be Greek? There are three major elements to being a Greek: friendship, learning, and leadership. First, when new students (and not-so-new students) participate in fraternity or sorority Rush, often they do so to meet new people, make new friends. And when a senior Greek member is asked what made being Greek special, often he/she first answers, "My brothers/sisters." Learning and growing is the second element of Greek life. Through involvement in the organization, members become wiser (and older) and as they grow through the many transitions of college life together. Finally, Greek organizations provide unique opportunities for individual members to find their niche and explore their own abilities as leaders, both within the Greek organization and on campus.

Fraternity and sorority members participate in Greenfeather activities including the Chalk Art and Rock-a-thon events.

Have a Nice Day

This year marked Alpha Tau Omega's Five Year Anniversary since their Theta Psi chapter was chartered on February 5, 1983 here at Stetson. Although they are the youngest fraternity on campus, they have grown to become the second largest in membership. This increase in size has brought with it many changes that have improved the fraternity as a whole. They have become more geared toward social service, there is a greater emphasis on scholarship, more effort is being made to meet ATO's from other schools, and their intramurals' performance has improved. Their alumni relations have also turned for the better and the highlight event of the year, The Founder's Day Banquet, held on February 5th, allowed the brothers to celebrate their anniversary with the alumni.

Delta Sigma Phi is the oldest fraternity at Stetson University and in the state of Florida. This year marked their Ninetieth year on campus and in celebration the Sailor's Ball was held with alumni from all over Florida and state officials attending. The fraternity takes pride in its traditions and it also has been through some important changes. In the past four years, the fraternity has doubled their membership and this year over half of the brothers are planning on attending graduate school. The fraternity was recognized by the National Fraternity for their exceptional scholarship and in November the President, Dave Bricker, received National recognition at a convention. They sponsored a Little League baseball team and they set up a perpetual fund to support internships at National during the summer and to provide scholarship awards.

Lambda Chis Rock The Beach

Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, founded in 1909 at Boston University, was chartered at Stetson University in 1948 as the Zeta Tau chapter. Their flower is the white rose, their colors are purple, green, and gold, and their symbol is the cross and crescent.

The Lambs, known as the "fraternity of honest friendship", are actively involved in all areas of campus life and community service. The fraternity's newest project was regular weekly visits to the Duval Home, a home for mentally and physically retarded people located here in Deland. Also, the brothers periodically went to the Sheriff's Youth Ranch and spent time with the boys staying there, sharing good times and creating fond memories. Finally, Lambda Chi Alpha sponsored a canned food drive at Thanksgiving for the needy in the area. One of their house accomplishments this year was the completion of the Lamb beach and deck.

Pike Is It!

High participation in social service projects was the major goal for the Pi Kappa Alphas during the year. There were many facets of charity work by all.

The Cerebral Palsy Dance-a-thon to the haunted house for underprivileged children was held in conjunction with the Pi Phis. One of their community services was to adopt a grandparent and provide companionship throughout the year.

Pi Kappa Alpha was founded on March 1, 1968, at the University of Virginia. The Delta Upsilon chapter was founded at Stetson in March of 1931. Traditionally being active on campus, some of their activities include the sorority pledge class welcome and their annual Toga party.

The first annual Labor Day Weekend party started the year off with a blast for the Sigma Nus. Amidst the collection of new trends was the Halloween social that included two sororities, the Alpha Xi Deltas and the Zeta Tau Alphas and another fraternity, the Peeps. Among special events for the year was the celebration of Sigma Nu's seventy-fifth anniversary. They also were the annual host of the Duval Home Christmas party and the Sigma Nu division leadership conference.

Adjusting to change, Sigma Nu was proud to take on twelve new pledges at fall rush. The pledges are the "brothers' guarantee for a great future of Sigma Nu", states brother Ricardo Cividanes.

We Will be Strong Again!

"We will be strong again!" was the reply from one of the brothers of Pi Kappa Phi after their recent dismissal from fraternity row. The fraternity was the only one to be founded in South Carolina in 1904 at the College of Charleston. The Stetson chapter was established in 1921. Seventeen of the brothers stayed to rebuild what is one of Stetson's oldest fraternities. The pride, brotherhood and memories of what once was will always be with them. Dedication and the beliefs they hold sacred will keep them together and allow them to achieve their goals. "Ooden deasp'a ha'mas", "Nothing shall ever tear us asunder", sincerely replied the Men of Chi.

Our Hearts Belong to You, Sigma Phi Epsilon

Sigma Phi Epsilon was founded on November 1, 1901 at the University of Richmond. The fraternity colors are violet and red, and their flower is the violet and dark red rose. This year's officers are: Keith Costner, President; Walter Bleck, Vice President; David Pearl, Controller; Alvaro Quiros, Chaplain; Tom Dodge, Alumni Chairman; and John Thompson, Secretary.

This year was packed with spirited, fun activities such as the Annual Bahama Blue Party, the Third Annual Bourbon Street with the Pi Beta Phi sorority, and the Block Party in the Spring. Along with the spectacular parties, the fraternity was involved in helping the community. They held a Softball Marathon on Labor Day weekend to benefit Muscular Dystrophy. Their major fundraiser for the year was the Third Annual Airband Competition.

"You'll never catch a Phi Sig Associate with his drawers down . . . twice," says Terrell Salerno to Mike Finley.

Proud to Be a Phi Sig

Since their reinstatement in 1984, Phi Sigma Kappa has grown considerably. Before the end of 1987 their fraternity membership reached forty brothers. Not only did they grow in numbers, but they also grew in accomplishments and pride. For the past four years Phi Sigma Kappa had been rewarded by Volusia County School Board for its outstanding contribution to Blue Lake Elementary School. The brothers were proud to display the trophy for the number one G.P.A. on campus when the school year opened.

For the first time in Phi Sig history, the brothers obtained a live-in house on Fraternity Row. It was a fun and exciting year, as the brothers never knew what to expect from one second to the next—especially in Room Nine.

On a sentimental note, the original refounders graduated this year and will be deeply missed. But their spirit will carry through the years and make all the brothers "proud to be a Phi Sig."

Alpha Xi Delta was established on April 17, 1893, at Lombard College. The quill is the sorority's badge, the pink rose its flower, and Al Fuzzy Bear its mascot. The colors of Alpha Xi Delta are gold and double blue. Alpha Xi was chartered at Stetson in 1917. A successful rush marked the beginning of a fantastic year for the Xis. The Alpha Xis had a great year holding socials with all of Stetson's fraternities, and also found time to organize an Easter Egg Hunt for the Twinkle Star Day Care Center, sponsor a fashion show to benefit the American Lung Association, plus have a wonderful time at their Winter and Spring formals.

ZTA's come a long way since Oct. 12, 1934 . . . the date that the Beta Psi chapter was installed on Stetson University's campus. Originally, they were called Sigma Alpha Phi, the proud wearers of the mulberry and mill green. Several fraternities and sororities marked the occasion with gifts and greetings. Now, 53 years later, and after a tasteful switch to turquoise blue and steel grey, Zeta Tau Alpha maintains the same intra-fraternal spirit with her fellow fraternities as she did in the earlier decades. The Zetas boast of Greek honors including Panhellenic Pledge of the Year for the past four years, overall Greenfeather champion for six out of seven years past, and friendly intramurals competition. Delta Delta Delta was founded in 1888 at Boston University. The sorority's colors are blue, silver, and gold. Their flower is the pansy, and their symbols are the pearl, pine tree, and stars above the crescent moon. Stetson's Alpha Delta chapter of Delta Delta Delta was established in May of 1913, one of the oldest sororities on campus. The Tri-Deltas kept very busy this year with campus events such as their Blood Drive, Formal, Founder's Day celebrations, and pledge activities. The sorority boasted a strong Fall pledge class, high academic achievement, and individual member involvement in a wide variety of campus activities and organizations outside of the sorority.

Delta Delta Delta is a sorority that takes pride in its diversity coupled with member unity.

Thetas Show Spirit!

This year was one to be noted as dynamic and growing . . . The women of Kappa Alpha Theta moved in and up during the Stetson Year 1987-88. The changes can be gathered under a broad theme called, "Enthusiasm."

The first cause for enthusiasm was the super change of sorority housing! Thetas were proud to have a beautiful place to call home.

With such a solid foundation and enthusiasm unequaled, Thetas excelled in all typical college adventures. Rush was charged and compelling, and quality women joined the black and gold bonds. Socially, academically, and in the realm of campus events, the kite-flyers were active everywhere.

Continuing its sixth year as a chapter at Stetson, Theta's recipe has been enthusiasm and growth, coupled with the sorority's love and unity.

Angels Aim Straight!

There are inevitable changes that occur in a sorority each year: a new pledge class, different officers and a variety of social events. However, the most significant change this year was the addition of Pi Beta Phi's own sorority house. Not only did it house sixteen of their upper-classmen, it also served as a center of all Pi Phi activities. They were able to hold Rush activities, and weekly meetings in a place they could call home.

The Pi Phis also held their annual Winter and Spring formals, the Headstart program, the Big Sister/Little Sister hunt, and the continued support of their philanthropies—Arrowcraft and Arrowmont.

Perhaps the most important constant in Pi Beta Phi was their never-ending link of friendship and sisterhood that bonds them to Angels, arrows, and the wine and silver blue, regardless of change.

Panhellenic and IFC Spread Greek Spirit to its fullest

Stetson's Panhellenic Council strives to promote a true spirit of sisterhood among all Greek women by organizing many activities in which the sororities participate together. For example, the Junior Panhellenic Council sponsors the annual Christmas caroling. Panhellenic also hosts the Greek Awards Celebration and Greek Week which includes the Dating Game, Bed Race, and Greek Sing.

Panhellenic experienced many changes this year. For example, they now have their own office located on sorority row. Also, the panhellenic's Kappa class of Rho Chis changed the shape of Fall Sorority Rush by generating the largest number of pledges ever reaching the highest quota ever set. There was a substantial increase in the number of upperclassmen that participated in the formal Rush activities. President Mayte Figueiras feels that the successful Rush was a direct result of Panhellenic portraying a supportive and positive image of the sororities on campus.

Stetson's Intrafraternity Council also works to promote Greek life on campus. In addition to working with Panhellenic on Greek Week and organizing Formal Fraternity Rush, they put out the annual Freshman Register.

I.F.C. has gone through some necessary restructuring this year. Now they not only have elected representatives but also a President's Council made up of the presidents of the Fraternities. The council has become more active and now has meetings every week. These changes have helped them to increase the bonds of brotherhood between Greek men on Stetson's campus.

Getting Involved On Campus

The word "college" can make any high school senior feel a little uneasy. Big and expensive textbooks, two-hour exams, and nights filled with homework aren't much to look forward to. College life is, however, much more than this. It also means getting involved on campus, and Stetson has many great organizations from which to choose. This year, hundreds of enthusiastic freshmen entered Stetson and took these organizations by storm. Many clubs experienced a substantial increase in membership as a result.

Being involved does require commitment, but it also means fun, new friends, and new experiences. A well-rounded education comes not only from reading a book but by learning from real-life experiences as well. This combination of a formal and informal education helps a person to change and grow during this important time of life spent at college. All of those students who are involved in campus organizations are truly making the most of their years at Stetson.

Members of the American Chemical Society, Erin O'Connor, Diane Goijburg, and Todd Lowther, work on an experiment.

Touchstone—Five years ago the English honorary society Sigma Tau Delta published the first Touchstone, as a literary magazine with graphics. Since then the magazine's publication has been assumed by an independent staff, and the magazine itself has grown to encompass more than just stories and poems. The 1985 editor-in-chief Sam Acevedo conceived the idea of dividing Touchstone into sections according to genre. Thus evolved the present Touchstone, which includes not only prose and poetry, but also critical and lyrical essays and two and three dimensional graphics. As this year's editor-in-chief Eric Owens said, "Touchstone" is now an aesthetics magazine."

The Hatter—Hatter editor Steve Boyd opened the first yearbook meeting with a pep talk. "We're going to make this year's Hatter the best yearbook we can. Even if we've got to kill ourselves to do it." Then began the frenzy. Even with the help of a professional photographer and developer, the photography staff had its hands full taking candids, while the layout staff tried to track down various people for copy information. At first no one could get into the locked office, and, of course no meeting was ever scheduled that everyone could attend. Even as deadlines drew near, though, dedication and enthusiasm remained high, the staff worked many long hours to capture in the 1987-88 Hatter the passing sensations of this year. The Hatter thanks for their assistance the people at the physical plant, Stetson's public relations department, the Reporter, and the Camera Store.

The Reporter—This year the Reporter celebrated its hundredth anniversary and received as a present its very own darkroom. (Well, sort of. It no longer has to share a darkroom with the yearbook.) As it had done for a century, this "most important organization on campus," as the newspaper staff likes to think of itself, continued to keep the student well informed on the administration, campus life, sports and activities—in short, on anything affecting the student body.

Student Government Association—The Student Government Association (SGA) attends to the welfare of the student body and accordingly seeks changes and provides services that benefit the students. This past year the SGA had the library hours extended from 11:00 to 12:00 PM, and, by holding the food service meetings, helped to bring back the takeout trays and to establish once and for all that one can get a baked potato as a side. During winter term the SGA published the yellow pages, advertising the books students wanted to sell, and, hoping to increase voter turnout in the spring elections, published pamphlets under its Exercise Your Right campaign. The SGA sought a revision of its constitution, and, finally, planned the graduation ceremonies that sent off the Class of 1988.

Stetson Union Board—The Stetson Union Board (SUB) sponsored through its committees a variety of student activities. Friday Flicks presented weekly movies for a mere fifty cents, and Concerts arranged for musical groups to perform on campus. Special Events planned both amusement park trips and Hatter nights out. In coordination with the Stetson Outdoors Club, Special Events also rented sports equipment and planned excursions into the Great Outdoors. Top Hat provided mid-week musical and comic entertainment. Occasionally the doughnut and juice Happy Hours, hosted by the elected representatives, would be coordinated with the Top Hat acts so that the performers could play teasers before their night shows; most often, though, the Happy Hours were held just to relieve the week's stress. And, as the students were aware, especially before the volume was adjusted, WSTN provided the music at meals and on campus events. Also, a new committee was formed—Student Development and Communications. This committee arranged for speakers to deliver to the SUB informative lectures and, more importantly, handled the comments and suggestions of the student body.

Alpha Kappa Psi is the oldest and largest coed professional business fraternity here at Stetson. The Theta Mu Chapter of AKPsi was founded in 1968, and has provided Stetson business students who join with two major benefits ever since. One opportunity lies in its business foundations. Alpha Kappa Psi fosters the advancement of business ethics and promotes the extra-curricular study of business-related topics. AKPsi sponsors guest speakers, special topics discussions, and career preparation. The second benefit is social . . . AKPsi furnishes the opportunity for its members to have fun and get involved while developing lasting friendships.

The Accountancy Club at Stetson University promotes proficiency in Accountancy and professionalism within the Accounting profession. Members sponsor guest lecturers, seminars, workshops, and other activities on accounting and related business topics. These activities help prepare Accounting students for work in the "real world." Special emphasis is placed on interviewing, enhanced studies, and stressing ethics in and out of the classroom. The Accounting program has been very strong and successful at Stetson, and this may be due, in part, to the support system created by business organizations such as the Accountancy Club.

Alpha Kappa Psi: Laura Avery, Selena Walker, Kim Nofi, Pam Burgos, Tina Carantzas, Erin Jowaisas, Lisa Krucker, Laura McCarthy, Karen Blosch, Thuy-Trang Tu, Kelly Giteles, Anke Kaminski, Glen Martin, Jennifer James, Debbie Monaco, Susan Dorsey, Nora Matamoros, Patty Gronewold, Caroline Dunal, Lee Tranford, Mary Phan, Joanne Woodbury, Amy Dance, Jamie Ball, Greta Camp, Kim Broyles, Mayte Figueiras, Mirtha Valdes, Jenny Lingo, Mike Brennan, Tim Bowden, Sharon Moylan, Debbie Aylor, Julia Gepfrich, Laura Gravens, Jennifer Meyer, Mike Houck, Mark Cameron, Steven Mooney, Robert Ottesen, Matt Scarborough, Kenneth Mearkle, Ben Jenkins, Michael Bennett, David Merrill, Dr. John Booth.

American Chemical Society: Claudia Epting, John Tulay, Todd, Raul Sanchez, Kim Gossett, Dee Remillard, Trudy Damm, Mike Remo, Carol Lemons, Karen Jones, Sherri Pescola, Lucille Russo.

Alpha Kappa Delta is a Sociology Honorary here at Stetson. According to Funk and Wagnalls Standard College Dictionary, sociology means "the science that treats of the origin and evolution of human society and social phenomenal, the progress of civilization, and the laws controlling human institutions and functions." Although their numbers are small, the members take great pride in sharing these common interests.

The American Chemical Society, an organization oriented toward Chemistry and Chemical Engineering professionals, invites students to join who are interested in furthering their knowledge and understanding in these fields. Members participate in field trips and special projects as well as sponsor visits from guest lecturers. Students in ACS find that their involvement in the organization greatly enhances their preparation for their chosen careers outside of regular classroom work and studies.

The University Judiciary Council, according to the 1987-88 Student Handbook, serves as a link between the University and Stetson students. Any student's violation of University regulations will be brought before the Judiciary Council for review. In adjudicating each case, the Council attempts to develop a sense of high standards and responsibility in each student in accordance with established doctrines.

Judiciary Council membership consists of two sophomores, four juniors, and six seniors. Students maintain their position on the Council until their expected dates of graduation. Elections for the Council are held every Spring.

Beta Beta Beta is an honorary organization for Biology students. Its primary focus is on the enhancement of undergraduate studies of Biological fields. The group encourages intellectual achievement and a great appreciation of its particular areas of interest. Special projects and trips are included on this organization's yearly agenda.

Gamma Sigma Epsilon: Dr. Beiler, Mike, Tom Bernard, Dee Remmillard, Todd, Dr. Everett, Tom Kelley, Trudy Damm, Laura Zindell, Lucille Russo.

Gamma Sigma Epsilon is a national chemistry honorary society. The organization is open to students who excel in the field of Chemistry and Chemical research. It recognizes students with exceptional academic achievements. Members and faculty advisors enjoy a comradery which develops from working closely together in and out of the classroom and continues past graduation. New members are invited to join in the Spring.

Mortar Board: Lisa Romay, Kim Rogers, Bobby Cranston, Trudy Damm, Carolyn Cera, Dr. Jackson Stevens, Lucille Russo, Stephanie Olir, John Moore, Leann Weiss, Dan Bell, Laura Zindell, Kim Dupree, Tiffany Siebold.

Mortar Board, an honor society for Stetson seniors, recognizes students who have consistently excelled academically and in service to the University. New members are inducted into Mortar Board in the Spring at the ODK/Mortar Board Leadership Banquet. This organization sponsors several events including Hatter Hat Day, and promotes overall involvement at Stetson, so its members collectively boast of achievements in all areas of campus life: Residential Life, Greek involvement, SUB, SGA, Publications, Academic Honoraries, community activities, and service organizations. Similarly, Mortar Board is recognized nationally as one of the most prestigious societies at the college level.

Orchestra—Very Few undergraduate institutions the size of Stetson have symphony orchestras which are student staffed and perform the standard repertoire as does the Stetson Orchestra. This is made possible at Stetson through an extensive scholarship program for outstanding orchestral musicians. It is important to note that one need not be a music major to qualify for an orchestra scholarship, and generous scholarships are available to music majors and non-music majors alike. The Stetson Orchestra performed regularly on the Stetson campus throughout the school year and made occasional tours off-campus. In addition to regular concert schedule, the orchestra also sponsored its annual Concerto Competition for members of the Stetson body. In this competition three students were chosen by a panel of faculty judges to appear in a full length concert presented by the orchestra during the spring term.

Wind Ensemble—Stetson's Wind Ensemble consists of non-majors as well as music majors. Students from all majors are eligible for wind ensemble scholarships as long as they play well enough and agree to be a part of the Stetson Wind Ensemble. Wind Ensemble gives students an opportunity for a diverse musical experience. This arrangement of woodwinds presents many concerts throughout the year performing a varied repertoire from Bach to twentieth century. New music professor Thomas Sleeper conducts the Wind Ensemble.

The University Chorus and the Choral Union are two other choirs at Stetson University. The University Chorus combines the Men's and Women's chorus. These two groups rehearse separately and come together to form the University Chorus. Together, the groups include members of the entire Stetson community, and present concerts at Stetson throughout the term. The Choral Union combines the University Chorus, the Chapel Choir, and the Concert Choir for major presentations of large choral works. The Choral Union performs not only with the University Orchestra but with other orchestras as well.

ROTC provides its cadets with leadership training, close friendships, and a special, intense kind of education in a variety of skills. Through teamwork, ROTC members learn benefits of cooperation, good communication, and hard work. Members take pride in their accomplishments and carry their learning experiences with them long after graduation.

Phi Chi Theta helps link the college world and the business world in an effort to prepare its collegiate members for the challenges of a new career. The Gamma Theta chapter of Phi Chi Theta provides speakers on special topics, sponsors field trips to surrounding businesses, and arranges for faculty members to meet with the group informally to answer questions and give advice. Members also organize career workshops to give students an opportunity to see what the market has to offer and the trends to anticipate.

Lynn Nichols prepares for another Outdoor Club Great Adventure.

Jason Carr, president of the BCM group, resides over a typical meeting.

Kathy Eccles enjoys a CCM function.

CCM members enjoy a get-together.

The Stetson Outdoor Club sets three goals for participants: 1) grow as an individual; 2) learn to be a part of and work together in a group; 3) learn wilderness skills. These goals provide individuals with benefits which they can apply to other areas of their lives and may aid the students in finding special qualities and skills in themselves they never knew they possessed.

SOC is unique because participants do not need prior experience or training to take part in the programs. Just a few of these activities include snow skiing, a bare foot cruise, and kayaking.

The Stetson Outdoor Club not only provides students with a break from the ordinary, but a challenge. As one participant recalls, "The challenges and fears we all had, i.e. rockclimbing, backing off a rock, etc., are like the challenges of tests and social acceptance. Gradually, through all these shared though separate experiences, the people became a group of individuals."

BCM, or Baptist Campus Ministry, is an institution nearly as old as Stetson itself. Founded on the principles upon which the University was founded, the BCM promotes fellowship, personal growth, and learning through the study of Christian doctrines. The group sponsors special trips, attends conventions, and continues the tradition of Thursday night Vespers at Allen Hall. All students, regardless of denomination, are always welcome.

Catholic Campus Ministry is growing each year. Through outreach programs, Sunday Mass, special get-togethers, and sincere service activities, members of CCM learn about others and themselves.

Phi Alpha Delta is one of the newest honoraries at Stetson University. The organization is an honorary fraternity for Pre-Law students. Because of Stetson's DeLand campus' close ties with the Law school, Phi Alpha Delta addresses important undergraduate needs. The organization helps prepare members for law school entrance requirements and, more important, for the realities of the rigors of law school.

Phi Alpha Delta: Chip Howard, Clemente Inclan, Liz Fedele, Patrick Bell, Bob Finkbiner, Garth Goodman, Sandy Boriello, Stephanie Olin.

Wesley House, the home of the Methodist Campus Ministry, strives to promote fellowship among its members (both Methodists and non-Methodists) by providing a spiritually strong core. This core is built through regular activities and meetings and special camping trips, dances, picnics, parties, and fellowships. Student involvement in all activities is welcomed and encouraged.

This past summer, the Methodist Campus Ministry suffered a huge loss when the main building of the Wesley House caught on fire and had to be closed for some time. Because of the strong bonds developed between members, however, the Wesley House remains a strong force at Stetson.

Omicron Delta Kappa: Danielle Mezura, Sims Kline, Andy Neck, Kim Heller, Clemente Inclan, Janet Booth, Tiffany Siebold, Lucille Russo, Stephanie Olan, Laura Zindell, Bobby Cranston, Carla SanGiovanni.

Omicron Delta Kappa is a National leadership honorary society of high national repute and equally great regard at Stetson. This organization is made up of juniors and seniors who meet certain standards specified in the ODK charter. These standards specify selection on the basis of high scholastic achievement and involvement in at least five major areas of college life. Membership is also extended to faculty members who show outstanding leadership qualities and exemplary character. ODK recognizes today's leaders and fosters this leadership potential through superlative campus involvement and academics.

The Religious Life Council is a multi-denominational organization that provides members with experience in the ministry. Students lead services in a variety of settings, counsel young people in the community, and become aware and involved in current events and issues that impact upon them as students and people. Experiences obtained through the activities of the Religious Life Council provide members with valuable lessons and practical experiences to be applied throughout their lives.

Phi Eta Sigma was chartered at Stetson University in 1978. It is a national honorary society that recognizes outstanding freshman students. To be eligible for membership, a freshman must have achieved and maintained a 3.5 grade point average.

Psi Chi is the National Honor Society in Psychology. The Stetson chapter of Psi Chi was founded in 1957, and continues to maintain the principles upon which it was founded: to encourage, stimulate, and recognize achievement in the science of Psychology. Students are eligible to join Psi Chi who maintain a 3.0 grade point average and who have taken at least 12 hours of Psychology classes. Both graduate and undergraduate students are welcome to become members.

The Society of Physics Students provides members with opportunities to explore the facets of Physics outside of their regular class work. SPS sponsors many activities including lectures, special events, and career planning along with regular meetings.

Sigma Tau Delta: Stetson's chapter of the national English honorary, encourages fellowship among those majoring in English and advances interest in literature and writing. Students majoring or minoring in English and maintaining a 3.0 or better in English are eligible to become members of STD. This year, the organization asked several professors and writers to speak on English-related topics, special personal interests, and to share excerpts of their own works. The group made special efforts to collaborate with students who don't ordinarily have the opportunity to share their literary talents.

Rho Lambda: Shanda Gilderbloom, Carolyn Ciera, Kathy Kivi, Bret Schiotet, Claudia Epting, Stephanie Olin, Caroline Robinson, Lillian Washington, Ronda, Danielle Mezera, Debbie Monaco, Sarah Brown, Debbie Sabol, Tiffany Siebol, Dana Boeck, Debbie Allen, Lisa Romay, Libby Threlkel, Janet Booth.

Rho Lambda is an honorary society of outstanding Greek women. Members boast long lists of accomplishments both within their own sorority and across the campus. New members are selected at the beginning of the year and are welcomed into the group during the Panhellenic pledging ceremony. At this year's ceremony, Rho Lambda's president, Bret Schroetel welcomed nearly a dozen new members to the prestigious group.

Theta Alpha Phi is the national dramatic honorary fraternity here at Stetson. In order to be considered for membership, a student need not be a theatre major, but must meet certain criteria. The student must be at least a sophomore and must acquire a certain number of points awarded on the basis of participation in acting, set work, lighting, sound work, and completion of speech and/or theatre classes.

Members of Theta Alpha Phi take part in all Stover Theatre productions, this year including The World We Live In (The Insect Comedy), The Rivals, and Little Mary Sunshine. In addition, the group participated this year in Greenfeather and Parents' Weekend activities. The members of Theta Alpha Phi are a very diverse group of people who use their communication skills in all aspects of campus life.

The Stetson College Bowl team competes intercollegiately with about twenty-five institutions in the Southeast. Popularly called the "academic game of the mind," members of the team, under the leadership of the captain and the coach, participate in tournaments throughout the semester. The challenge of learning and recalling knowledge in a wide variety of subject areas is intensified under the tournament conditions. The team participates in five to seven tournaments on local campuses, leading to the regional competition for qualification in the national event. The team also holds a tournament for similar groups in Volusia County high schools.

Theta Alpha Phi: David Finkle, Kim Millwater, Andrea Liska, Steve Boyd, Carolyn Seymour, Alan Younger, Marjorie Gilbert, Coach Griffiths, Carol Andersen, Eve Chin, Jeffre Pawlack, Barbara Rickmens, James McBride, Debra Cole, James Wright, Jim DelAquila.

Carson Health Club: Dave Speregan, Dawn Eclendahl, Kevin Neat, Jason Oust, Rick Colvert, Joe Hess, Richard Shuman, Dan Bell.

Carson Health Club was established over eight years ago to meet students' requests for such a facility, and has now grown into a vital part of many students' overall health program. Soccer and baseball players as well as many other men and women use the facilities regularly. The Club also sponsors major events including the Powerlifting Meet and the Bench Press competition.

Forensics: Sherri Rice, Tracey Schultz, Angel Yasquire, Julie Kohne, Lauren Furay, Lynette Jackson, Steve Boyce, Harold Finkly, Jeff Hoffman, Patrick Jones, Deryl Johnson, Karen Palacios.

Forensics is Stetson's prestigious forensics fraternity. The organization participates in state and national tournaments, gaining recognition for prizes won and unique individual performances. The fraternity is open to all forensics participants who have competed in at least two tournaments. Through competition, hard work, and a special flair for the dramatic, Forensics members become well-received, well-rounded speakers.

As an example of this year's accomplishments, the Stetson Forensics team attended the Silver Falcon Forensic Tournament in Miami in mid-November. Speakers competed in a variety of judging categories, including Oral Interpretation, Persuasive Speaking, Impromptu Speaking, Informative Speaking, and Duo. The team won a second place sweepstake trophy and first in the individual events category.

Stetson Marketing Association strives to stimulate interest and encourage participation in extra-curricular activities related to the Marketing field. The organization sponsors special events all year including guest lecturers, special topic discussions, and surveys of the business community. The group also supports its members and encourages them academically. Finally, it provides its members the opportunity to serve in leadership roles that will provide them valuable experience within their chosen careers.

New SMA members for 1987-88 include: V. Ackel, T. Aldrich, C. Allen, S. Birkenstock, J. Blackwell, T. Bohne, E. Buss, K. Byrne, K. Contreras, R. Covert, S. Cox, K. Cronin, D. Dodge, L. Duckworth, J. Hatter Connection is a group of students, organized and overseen by the Admissions Office, who serve as hosts and hostesses to prospective students and their parents. These students help in all phases of the "recruitment": they contact potential new Hatters toward the end of Winter Term, and spend a substantial amount of time with them when they visit Stetson. The Hatter Connection is available to answer questions, and this staff is indeed well-versed in the ins-and-outs of life at Stetson. The Hatter Connection staff is the very first impression a prospective student has of Stetson, and the staff's training provides them with valuable interpersonal experience to be used in their own lives.

Sprichst du Deutsch? If you do, whether you only know a little or can speak fluently, perhaps you would be interested in the German Club. There you will find others who share your interest in the German language and German culture. However, not all of the club's activities center directly around Germany. Besides meeting once a month, once a year in the fall the club holds a picnic for its members in DeLeon Springs. In December they go Christmas caroling, and four or five times during the year they gather to watch a movie. As for sampling the German fare, once a year the club goes to a German restaurant. Some new activities have been planned for this year. One of these is holding a series of one-act plays with students in the French Club and the Spanish Club. Another is holding an International Olympics, also with these two clubs. Many of the students in the German Club are here at Stetson on the Year Abroad Program. So if you'd like to learn more about Germany, they would be glad to tell you about their experiences and help you learn to speak "Deutsch", also!

Tae Kwon Do is a form of martial arts self defense, and the class is open to men and women of all ages. The colors of the belts are symbolic. Beginners wear white belts, symbolic of the fact that they know nothing about this art. However, in the class the students learn enough to become yellow belts, symbolic of a blossoming flower. Master Chung, the instructor, is a fourth-degree (out of eight degrees) black belt. Early in the year, Stetson hosted the Southeast Conference, a national competition. Shawn White, the only black belt at Stetson University, took second place. Stetson is hoping that the Conference can become an annual event.

Sigma Pi Sigma is a Physics Honorary organization. Students are brought together by their common interests in the science of Physics, and the organization sponsors informational meetings on the field. Focusing on career preparation, and academic achievement, Sigma Pi Sigma offers its members an important opportunity to remain up to date in their curriculum.

International House: If you are interested in a study abroad program or would like to have contact with students from different countries, the International House is the place to go! Dr. Richard A. Ferland is the new Director of the Office of International Exchange and Mrs. Grace Lasorsa is the Executive Secretary. They process all international student applications for Stetson's programs in Dijon (France), Freiburg (West Germany), and Madrid (Spain). The Study Abroad Program Office also processes immigration papers for all foreign students who attend Stetson. This year there are fifty-one foreign students on campus, representing twenty-three different countries (a large increase from the eighteen foreign students who were here eight years ago). Forms for Winter Term trips and university exchange programs are also handled at the International House.

GET SHOT!

Nobody Can Escape the Camera's Eye

Club and group members, fraternity and sorority men and women, unknowing individuals walking to class — nobody can escape the all-seeing eye of Hatter photographer's camera. The diversity and individuality on a college campus provide unique opportunities for any photographer or observant bystander to watch . . . and learn . . . about the character of the times. Stetson University's students have always been individuals, and, as you can see, still are. Here, a few Stetson students GET SHOT, caught in the act of being themselves.

Oh yeah - I was just gonna say that, Yeah.

ADVERTISING Provides Students With Resources

No matter what the form, whether personal, greek, Stetson publicity, or a business, advertising is an essential part of the yearbook production. The Hatter provides businesses with a direct link to Stetson students.

Advertising is good for businesses because through publicity, they gain loyal customers. The Hatter guarantees a circulation of over 2600. Newspapers, not even commercial advertising, can guarantee any specific number. Unlike other forms of publications, the Hatter is distributed free to all students. No fee is charged.

Not only do the yearbooks go out to Stetson students, they also reach other businesses, professionals, and parents as well. In the 1988 Hatter, some forty-five advertisers accounted for over $7,000 of the funds used to publish the book. A yearbook advertisement is a valuable source of publicity because unlike a newspaper or flyer, the Hatter is a permanent fixture — not something to be thrown away — but be kept and looked at again and again.

The Hatter advertisements provide students with a source to refer to when looking for products, public services, restaurants, or any other student needs. The Hatter appreciates its sponsors — students, parents, Stetson alumni, Greeks, businesses, and the community as a whole for their continued contributions to the publication of the Hatter.

Stores carrying the essentials for a college student are within easy walking distance of the university.

MIKE BRENNAN

"Gravity — not just a good idea. It's the law," quips Mike Brennan, SUB activist. Sure, what comes up usually comes down, but Mike's involvement here at Stetson seems only to skyrocket as he prepares for graduation.

Many are familiar with Mike as SUB officer, Sig Ep member, Zeta Man, etc., etc., but he insists he has other important "hobbies": "biking, lifting, running, coin collecting, and watching women," he says, and adds, "but not necessarily in that order." His favorite professor is Dr. John Booth, and his favorite faithful stand-bys are Luci, his pet boa, and Orville, his office plant. Finally, Mike's motto to live by: "He who dies with the most toys, wins!"

KIM BROYLES

The different organizations which Kim Broyles was involved in each helped her to grow and learn during her four years at Stetson. She is now better able to express her beliefs and values. She is much more secure in herself and the goals she sets out to accomplish. Each person whom she came into contact with taught her something different about how to live, laugh, and learn. One of the most important organizations which contributed to her self-growth was BCM. By holding the position of president, she saw the importance of unity and of setting a good example. Her parting words of advice are "Be willing to take risks even though you may get hurt because if you don't take the risk, you might miss out on something really special".

BOBBY CRANSTON

"Footprints in the sands of time are never made by sitting down." Here, Bobby Cranston shares his favorite motto and a bit of his insights. "(Stetson) is a small school which provides the opportunity to get to know your professors really well. It also provides students with a lot of activities outside the classroom."

Bobby follows his own advice by splitting his time between studies, clubs, Phi Sig, Head Resident responsibilities, and Cross-Country. He takes special pride in his completion of the Trans America Athletic Conference (TAAC) Meet in San Antonio, Texas. Never to be one to sit down on the job, Bobby wishes the best of luck to future Stetson University generations.

MAYTE FIGUEIRAS

As Mayte Figueiras reflected upon her experience at Stetson University she emphasized how change for the better had occurred because the people had brought about those changes. She was involved in many campus organizations that helped her to realize that nothing is impossible. Each one gave her a sense of personal gratification and accomplishment. She felt more prepared to go out into the world because she learned and experienced a lot in her organizations. The organizations are representative of every part of Stetson and the different types of people that attend Stetson so to get the most out of the college experience one has to get involved.

HAROLD FINDLEY

During the four years that Harold Findley spent here at Stetson University, he has seen both himself and the Stetson community change tremendously. He has become more receptive to different people's opinions and has learned to take them into account when formulating his own ideas. Harold feels that the people are what makes Stetson what it is today and that one should never deny himself the many opportunities that Stetson has to offer. By getting involved in various activities, Harold was able to experience many different aspects of Stetson and meet and assist the people who helped make things happen. Most importantly, Harold learned how to set goals and reach those goals by having motivation and persistence.

CLEMENTE INCLAN

"It's kind of sad to graduate," says Clemente Inclan. "I'm trying to relax and spend time with friends before I do." Clemente's years at Stetson were far from relaxing, as he involved himself in many areas of campus life. One aspect of his involvement was "a one to one relationship with . . . faculty and administration. It's a great asset for Stetson. It gave me an opportunity to grow personally."

One vivid memory Clemente has is of his experience in his IPR class. "It's amazing that a class could bring people together (like that). I remember that we were together when the Shuttle exploded, and we were able to share our feelings and friendship when it happened. We'll always be close."

MATT LACEY

"I was the original squirrelly-eyed Freshman." Matt Lacey has come a long way since his Freshman days. He reflects that Stetson "is a good place for you to mature. Now that I'm leaving, I feel prepared and ready to take on any task."

Matt's empathy for "the Freshman Experience" led him to involvement in the Residential Life and the FOCUS staffs. He is also a believer in the value of extracurricular activities: "In the future, after I've graduated, the things I will use the most will be things I've learned outside the classroom." Matt's congratulations go out to all the Delta Sig seniors and the entire class of 1988.

JAMES McBRIDE

James McBride has been very involved at Stetson with both theatrical and religious activities. He has played several lead and supporting roles in Stover productions. Also, he is the Director of Off-Campus Ministries for the BCM, overseeing the touring Choir, Revival Team and Drama and Puppet committees.

James says that he has found Stetson to be "spiritually rewarding," and he believes that the campus provides many opportunities for Christian growth. Through his own active participation on campus, he knows that he will leave Stetson with many friendships that will last a lifetime. His advice to those who claim that they can't find what they are looking for at Stetson is that they aren't looking hard enough.

"Out of all my accomplishments here, the one thing that stands out is the time I cleaned my room . . . once," brags John Moore. "Actually, I am especially proud of a third-place victory I had in an Intramurals swim meet. I had never swum competitively before, so it was very exciting for me."

John recognizes several changes in Stetson and in himself since he first began attending. He says that Stetson cares more about students now than before and that students have earned a more respected voice in the conduct of the university. As for changes in himself? "I can express myself much better, I have adopted different ways of thinking, and I have learned how to better ponder issues and develop completely my own insights and opinions on those issues."

ANDY REICH

Andy Reich is a strong supporter of campus involvement. He considers the Greek system to be one of the most rewarding experiences at Stetson because it provides an avenue to campus activities. Besides being the President of Pi Kappa Alpha, he has also held six other offices in his fraternity. He is also President of Order of Omega Greek Honorary. Two other areas he has found extremely gratifying are the Hatter Connection, because "it's easy to sell a University you like so much," and FOCUS, because it helps Freshmen on a direct, "one to one basis."

Andy strongly feels that, through his involvement at Stetson, he has obtained practical leadership and communication skills which will help him throughout life.

LUCILLE RUSSO

Spotlight
Lucille Russo remembers that the first time she visited Stetson's campus, she was struck by how friendly the people were, a feeling that over her four years here has not diminished. "Stetson," she says, "is a warm and friendly place. It's a small community of friends. I never dreaded returning here after a holiday!"

She also praises the academics and activities: "Instead of just being a number in a huge class, Stetson's small classes provide me with more individual attention from my professors. And through activities, like the Greeks, I learned to interact with various types of people. Stetson is a university where one can get a great education and, at the same time, remain involved."

BRET SCHROTEL

Bret Schrotel believes that Stetson provided her with an invaluable opportunity for personal growth. "I was shy when I got here as a freshman, but there were so many opportunities, like organizations and the Greek system for instance, through which to grow." She has learned to deal well with people, speak in public — and has become self-confident and happy personally. If one is happy with oneself, says Bret, one can achieve whatever one wants. "Definitely — Stetson's environment allows one to reach one's potential."

LIBBY THRELKEL

One of Libby Threlkel's biggest sources of pride and accomplishment (and, perhaps, occasional frustration) has been in her positions as Resident Advisor and Head Resident. Involvement in the Residential Life staff provides participants with leadership and time-management experience and increased inter-personal skills. Libby hope to apply her experiences in education, possibly teaching for a year after graduation.

Her interests in education are not limited to teaching and instruction. Libby attended the National College Student Women Leaders Conference in Washington. There, she participated in workshops and seminars discussing a variety of college-level positions and women's roles within the college/university setting.

GEOFF TIMM

Greek Man of the Year Geoff Timm has been extremely involved in his fraternity, Sigma Nu, and those things which impact upon the organization. He served as IFC President for two years, represented IFC on the Student Affairs Committee, and worked as Sigma Nu's Risk Reduction Chairman. He also explains his position of House Father: "It is a graduate counselor liaison between university policies and fraternity. I have been involved in complete chapter programming and in charge of the administrative aspects of the house . . . much more than just a big babysitter."

Geoff believes that Stetson has become less conservative since he has attended school—much more liberal, says Geoff, "in policies and administration."

LAURA ZINDELL

Laura Zindell finds great satisfaction in her many accomplishments. As a Junior, she was President of ACS and as a Senior was President of Omicron Delta Kappa, a leadership and academic honorary. Becoming President of these organizations has provided her with the opportunity "to meet people," she claims, "as well as the opportunity to get involved" on campus and with campus events. "(Stetson) is what you make of it," Laura says, and with support and understanding from her friends, Laura has definitely left her mark.

And where will Laura leave future impressions? "I'm excited about moving on. I love to travel . . . it's a big goal for me."

On being a junior — One year to go! Why is it that the gap between sophomore and junior is so tremendous and the gap between junior and senior is so insignificant? Juniors are upperclassmen with all the luck — they are far from the bottom, close to the top, and an entire year away from being thrust into the cold, cruel world. But is a year really such a long time? Juniors begin to seriously consider their majors, their careers, and their lives after graduation. Classes become more specialized and directions become clearer. In high school, college-bound juniors simply prepare for college, but the future possibilities for college juniors are endless. A student's junior year can provide an excellent time to thoroughly investigate career goals and personal expectations.

On being a sophomore — One profound professor once said, "Being a sophomore is the most frustrating experience anyone can ever have. I would never, and probably could never, live through it again." No longer a freshman but far from senior, sophomores often take on the "middle child" stigma. Because they are not new to Stetson, they are expected to know it all and be completely adjusted. They cannot, however, share in the rites of an upperclassman's status. Yet, is the plight of the sophomore in fact, a plight at all? Hardly, because it is during this year that a student is best prepared to make the most of his/her remaining years at Stetson. Freshman idealism disappears and is replaced by more realistic, clearer views of college life. More importantly, they become more familiar with what Stetson has to offer, and they begin to consider what they have to offer Stetson.

On being a freshman — The first days are filled with wide-eyed wonder . . . so this is college?

High school is just a small step back and graduation is miles away as new students begin their careers at Stetson. But "Careers" and graduation are hardly considered; survival is the key. This means learning the ropes: staring over in a new place, developing new friendships and finding a niche. It means homework like you've never seen, professors who expect so much, meeting true academic challenges, and effectively relearning how to learn. It means freedom, social independence, personal challenges, and spiritual exploration. It can be the toughest and the easiest year at college . . . everything is different and difficult, but, it's okay! You're a freshman, and therefore have the ultimate excuse.

CLOSING 1988

Three of the happy ones at the Delta
Sig jailbreak party.

You would have to be a physics major to smile like that at an experiment.

Old Thetas and new Thetas gather for ground-breaking ceremonies last spring for their new house.

from our ad department; Passing Sensations.

One of the smiling faces found in the Hatrack.

It's business as usual in the security office.

As I reflect upon the four years that I have been here at Stetson, I have seen almost every aspect of it change. The things that I have noticed the most change in are the Forest of Arden, the courtyards of the dorms, the basketball games and the people. All of these passing sensations have made my four years at Stetson all the more enjoyable. For those of you who are to remain here, I ask you to start to notice these things around you. I ask you to start to build your passing sensations. For the seniors, like myself who are leaving, I hope that you took the time to notice, build, and collect your passing sensations. So now remember intramurals, formals, parties, loves . . .

Passing Sensations

Passing Sensations 1994

Photographs

The Senior Class is known for its unique body of work. This year, the class has produced a variety of artwork, from abstract to figurative, from traditional to non-traditional media, from theater group to film, from music to art critique.

Sixty-four of these "passing sensations" are being displayed in the school's permanent gallery, the Art Room, where it will remain throughout the year.

You will be disappointed if you do not visit this year's senior gallery. Please come to view, appreciate, and support. We are extremely grateful to all who have made this show a success. We hope you will be able to attend the opening reception on April 14 at 7 p.m. We begin there and have informal jazz music to set the mood.
